VOLUME 1—NUMBER 110

PADUCAH, KENTUCKY, MONDAY, JANUARY 18, 1897.

TEN CENTS A WEEK

MURDERS AND SUICIDES.

The Usual Number of Fatal Crimes Reported.

THE TERRIBLE BUBONIC PLAGUE.

A Negro at Cloverport Who Does Not Want An Office.

BANK FAILURE AT LOUISVILLE.

Halsey, Ky., Jan. 18.—George Card, of Williamsburg today killed Albert Fees. The trouble arose over a meat bill. Fees was a butcher, and he and Card were endeavoring to reach a settlement.

Jellison, Tenn., Jan. 18.—Elihu Huddleston, an old citizen, committed suicide last night by hanging himself with a trace chain. He is thought to have been demented.

A Fatal Horse Trade. Danville, Ky., Jan. 18.—Jim Bailey today shot and killed Chas. Stewart. The quarrel was over a horse trade. Bailey has been arrested.

The Terrible Plague.

Bombay, Jan. 18.—Thousands of deaths are occurring daily from the plague. The situation is hourly growing worse. Starvation is adding its terrible effects to the fatal scourge. Business is paralyzed and the city is almost depopulated.

The Curtain Falls.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 18.—The Bijou Theater Company of this city assigned today.

Bank Failure at Newport.

Newport, Ky., Jan. 18.—The First National Bank of this city closed its doors today. Its capital stock was $200,000 and its deposits about $450,000. It is thought that depositors will be paid in full.

YERKES HONORED.

Will Be a Member of McKinley's Reception Committee.

Danville, Ky., Jan. 18.—Hon. John Yerkes has been selected as Kentucky's member of McKinley's reception committee at the inauguration ceremonies. This is a great compliment to one of Kentucky's most popular men.

THE NEGRO WITHDRAWS.

Suddenly Learns That He Don't Want Office.

Cloverport, Ky., Jan. 18.—Fred Jones, the negro who has been an applicant for the postoffice here under the incoming administration, has suddenly withdrawn his application. His action has occasioned considerable surprise and comment, as it was admitted on all sides that he had his fight won. His action is very mysterious and many think that a secret deal has been made.

AN EXPECTED FAILURE.

The German National Bank, of Louisville, Closes Its Doors.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 18.—The German National Bank closed its doors today by order of the Comptroller of the Currency. The failure creates no surprise here as it has been expected for some time. Its stock for a long time has been worthless. Sixty thousand dollars in cash are on hand, and its loans are about $300,000. It is hard to get a correct statement of its condition. The failure was caused by bad loans and reckless management.

ABUSE OF PRIVILEGE.

Jim Holder Was a Trusty, But He Can't Be Trusted.

Jim Holder is a man who doesn't appreciate a privilege when it is extended him. He was in November fined $100 and sentenced to sixty days in jail by the federal court for violation of internal revenue laws. His home is in Franklin, Ky., and a day or two ago he was made a trusty. Saturday, his partner, Bob Milligan, colored, also of Franklin, was released by taking the insolvent debtor's oath, but Holder had nearly thirty days longer to serve, and could not thus secure his liberty. Yesterday he disappeared from the jail and not turning up any more, a search was instituted for him. He came back last night with a good load aboard, and it was learned that he got out with Milligan and they concluded to celebrate together. Today he is in a cell instead of being a trusty.

GAS MEN.

Meeting of Stockholders This Afternoon.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Paducah Gas Company will be held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock for the purpose of electing directors and officers for the ensuing year. Capt. John Gilbert and Mr. H. Wilkemyer, of Evansville, are here to attend.

TICKET PUNCHERS.

A Delegation in Paducah Today.

Illinois Central Plans of Interest to the Public.

Chief Conductor Isaac Wright, of Missouri division No. 89, O. R. C., Secretary and Treasurer C. S. Dodson, both of the Louisville and Nashville, Louisville, Dave Kinney, of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe, and Conductors J. R. O'Brien, W. C. Heaton, N. F. Bonsale, H. C. McKinney and W. H. Dyer, of the Illinois Central, arrived at 2 o'clock this morning from Louisville.

They came in pursuance of a call from the O. R. C. to hold a meeting for the purpose of reviving the local division, which has for some time past been deteriorating. They held a meeting at the Campbell building this forenoon, but at noon adjourned for dinner without having done anything. This afternoon they met again to organize.

Supt. Kemp, of the Memphis division, and Supt. Harahan, of the Louisville division, have notified all train men that somewhere on this division a great deal of vandalism has been practiced by cutting Pullman Palace cars with knives. The hand-some coaches have been badly defaced, and so far the perpetrators have conducted their manuevers in such a mysterious manner that discovery has been impossible. The respective superintendents are of the opinion that the vandalism is prompted by malice, and instructed all train men to keep a close lookout while at stations.

Chief Civil Engineer, C. H. Bowers, of the Illinois Central, spent yesterday in the city, and went up the road today.

Traveling Freight Agent R. C. Watkins went up to Evansville this morning.

This morning No. 284 pulled out of the yard here with forty-four empties for Central City. It looked like a pretty long train.

The pay train, according to an advance notice received from Assistant Paymaster Rowell this morning, will arrive in Paducah next Saturday at 3 p. m. and pay off the Illinois Central employees.

This afternoon the delegation of conductors reassembled at 2:15 o'clock. In response to an inquiry of a Star reporter they stated that they had transacted considerable business but none that could be given out for publication yet. The division will be reorganized some time this afternoon.

SHORT AND SWEET.

Judge Sanders' Court Soon Over Today.

Most of the Cases Dismissed One Fine Assessed.

Judge Sanders' court was soon over this morning. Dabney Anderson was arraigned on a charge of drawing a double-barreled shot gun on Lou Farrar. He pleaded guilty and was fined $3 and costs.

The case against Thomas Miller for breaking into Warren's slaughter house, was dismissed.

The case against Will Prever, colored, charged with cutting back McGee's, was dismissed. Both are boys, and McGee had attacked Prever's sister when he rushed to her rescue.

The case against Ella Brown, charged with robbery, was filed away with leave to reinstate.

DEATH OF DR. MOONEY.

Dies of Dropsy at His Home Near Briensburg.

Dr. J. M. Mooney, aged 65, died last night at his home near Briensburg, Marshall county, after a lingering illness of dropsy. The deceased was reported dead a few weeks ago, but it was a mistake. He had been practicing medicine in the vicinity of his home for the past 30 years, and was one of the most prominent men of that locality. He leaves a wife and several children, two of whom reside in Paducah, Messrs. Rufus Mooney, of South street, and Mr. W. A. Mooney, of South Eleventh street. The funeral will take place tomorrow.

Real Estate Transfers.

A peculiar deed was filed this afternoon. For the consideration of two mules Mr. J. M. Cochran and wife and Mr. L. H. Cochran and wife bargain, sell and convey to G. W. Coyer a parcel of land on the south bank of Island creek. Jesse Greif and Millie Wolf deed to Mrs. Sarah Birchett, for $250, a parcel of ground on South Fourth.

Mr. B. H. Scott and wife deed to the Illinois Central railroad, for $133.33 1/3, a tract of land at the intersection of the railroad and Clark's river. The company will put in a siding there.

Y. M. I. Notice.

All members of Jansen Council No. 282 are requested to attend an open session of the Council tonight at Cecilia Hall. Important business.

M. F. Korte, Secy.

LARGE SIZED SENSATION.

Supt. Letcher and Warden Happy May Be Removed.

INSPECTOR LESTER RECOMMENDS IT.

The Causes Alleged Are Incompetency and Inactivity and Lack of Executive Ability.

THE REPORTS TO BE FILED SOON.

Frankfort, Jan. 18.—Mr. C. W. Lester, the state Inspector and Examiner, is about to create a sensation in Kentucky Republican politics. The Inspector has begun the preparation of his reports to the governor on the condition of the recently investigated affairs of the Hopkinsville Asylum for the Insane and the Eddyville branch penitentiary.

Mr. Lester admits that he has taken 300 pages of type written testimony at Hopkinsville and more than 500 pages at Eddyville. What all this means or will mean is positively learned from another source. The Inspector has already demonstrated the fact that he is a courageous officer without fear or favor for those whom his duty compels him to investigate. He has some heroic remedies to suggest to the Governor and through him to the prison commissioners.

Mr. Lester is going to recommend the displacement of Superintendent Ben Letcher, of the Hopkinsville Asylum, and of Warden Happy, of the Eddyville prison. He is also going to recommend the appointment and election in their stead of a new Superintendent and a new Warden. In doing this he is not going to reflect on the personal or official integrity of either of these gentlemen, but will ascribe the tangible and unsatisfactory condition of things at the two institutions to lack of competency, inactivity and lack of executive ability on the part of the Superintendent and the Warden.

Rumor has it that a third institution, closer to Frankfort and of a different character, may come in for the same sort of recommendation insofar as its head is concerned.

WRIT OF LUNACY.

Two Young Ladies to Be Tried Tomorrow.

Information of lunacy was filed with County Attorney Johnson Houser this forenoon against Misses Bettie and Ella Torian, daughters of Mr. Wm. Torian, who reside in the city near the old Boyd homestead, a short distance off West Broadway. It is understood that the young ladies have been in this condition for several years. The case was set for 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The case against the Misses Torian was this afternoon postponed until tomorrow at 9 o'clock.

It is understood that they have been victims of epilepsy for eight or ten years, and it is desired by the family to place them where they can get the best treatment possible.

GRIFFITH AS RICHARD III.

At Morton's Tomorrow Night.

The young tragedian, Mr. John Griffith and his excellent company, including Miss Elizabeth Mossarratt, well known in this city, having for their first appearance in Shakespeare's Richard III, on the stage of our theater tomorrow night. The Courier-Journal, of Louisville, of recent date speaks as follows of their performance in that city.

Mr. Griffith is young, and the task of separating that which is to present day ears positively offensive from what is necessary and not obviously unpleasant in the tradition is a delicate and laborious one. It should rather be set to his credit that his work shows as little as it does of the really corrupting influences. He might have ranted through all the six acts, as a matter of fact, he did not begin to rant until the fifth. He has made the madman's rhythm and the scene, as many of the "foresight" have been, won't do; as it was, his reading was remarkable for intelligence and good balance. It is eminently to his credit that close and jealous attention could only discover two false emphases in all his lines, and those in a scene in which some hitch in the stage machinery was probably responsible for his passing inadvertence. His Richard, as a whole, may be called Irvingesque. His reading is excellent and with the ripening that years will bring his characterization will be a wholly satisfactory characterization on the traditional lines.

Failed to Comply.

The 10th inst was the last day on which practicing physicians could register births and deaths of the past year, yet two thirds of them have failed themselves liable to a heavy fine for a failure to comply with the law.

As a settlement of the estate of B. Weille, Sr., (deceased), must be made by February 1, 1897, all parties knowing themselves indebted to the firm of B. Weille & Son will call at once and settle. Respectfully,

J. H. WELLS & SON.

NEGROLOGICAL RECORD.

Two Aged Citizens Pass to the Great Beyond.

Young Ex-Paducan Dies in Texarkana, Ark., of Pneumonia.

Mrs. Susan Ward, aged 75, died yesterday at her residence, 203 Tennessee street, of pneumonia, after a brief illness. She leaves a family. The funeral took place at 2 o'clock this afternoon; interred at Oak Grove.

Mr. Lafayette Schroeder, aged 70, died of paralysis yesterday at his home on South Fourth street near Norton. He leaves a wife. The funeral will take place at 10 o'clock tomorrow, interment at Oak Grove.

A child of Wm. Dismore, of near Stiles, died yesterday.

The remains of J. W. Jennings were brought to the city and buried yesterday at St. Johns. The deceased was a young fireman on the Cotton Belt road, and died a day or two ago of pneumonia at Texarkana, Ark., after a brief illness. He formerly resided here and has a mother and several sisters here now.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Gus Friant took place yesterday.

A six-months-old child of Walter Gordon, near Coy, Marshall county, died last night of whooping cough.

PADUCAH PYTHIANS

Will Dedicate Their Handsome New Castle Tonight.

Paducah lodge No. 26 will be at home to all members of the order this evening at their new castle hall, third floor of the Bernhard block, 305 Broadway. They have now perhaps the most convenient, and among the handsomest secret society quarters in Paducah. The hall proper is 21 by 51 feet, neatly papered and carpeted, and furnished in oak and hard maple. The altar and officers' stations are the product of home manufacturers, made in the best manner, and of design consistent with the symbolism of the fraternity. Connected with the lodge room and to one side of the anteroom, so that degree work may be done with the maximum of ease and effect, is the property room, and immediately beyond these two, comprising the entire front breadth of the building, with a Broadway view, is the reception room, commodious and beautiful. It has connection with the stairway independent of any other apartment, and is intended to serve as a library as well. This latter idea is one of the strongest marks of the new ambition which thoroughly permeates the membership, and they anticipate no such thing as failure. The location of the building for this purpose, as for all other uses they have for it, is perfect, and altogether, those who may take opportunity at any time to look through the premises will hold Paducah's Pythians blameless in the pride they feel.

There have been two regular meetings of the lodge postponed on account of the unavoidable delay in the completion of the rooms, and members should not forget that installation of the officers-elect will constitute a part of the evening's business and pleasure.

IN THE DARK.

Marshal Collins Light Busted.

Marshal James Collins was bustling over with fire this morning as he sent his way towards town. Not long since he had been in "stagnant alley," the pride of the South side, an electric light, which completely illuminated the narrow and peculiar looking alley. Last night some miscreant saw the light. He hunted him up a rock, and a hard one, and smashed it into the light. The alley is now in darkness, and the Marshal says if he finds out who did it he will prosecute him to the full extent of the law.

TWO HEARTS.

Peculiar Freak of Nature at Calvert City.

A most remarkable infant was born at Calvert City a few days since. It was dead, and had two hearts, both, together with the liver, growing on the outside of the child's body.

Otherwise than the above, the infant was perfectly formed, and the doctors have it in alcohol and express themselves as being of the opinion that it is one of the most remarkable human freaks ever seen.

WANTS A CONTRACT.

Traveling Man Meets Market House Projectors.

Mr. W. A. Fuhrmann, of S. Birkenwald & Co., Milwaukee, arrived this forenoon to confer with the projectors of the new market house, and to make them figures on ice boxes, stall appearances, etc. No contract has as yet been made, however. The projectors will not divulge the proposed location of the projected market house.

Notice.

As a settlement of the estate of B. Weille, Sr., (deceased), must be made by February 1, 1897, all parties knowing themselves indebted to the firm of B. Weille & Son will call at once and settle. Respectfully,

SHOVED THE QUEER.

Charles Livingston Brought Here From Fulton.

PASSED BAD HALF DOLLARS.

One of His Victims Overtook Him and Shot at Him.

LODGED IN THE COUNTY JAIL.

Deputy Sheriff M. L. Rascoe, of Fulton, accompanied by Mr. J. D. Taylor, of the same place, arrived in the city on the 8 o'clock train over the Illinois Central this morning in charge of Charles Livingston, a young white man who is charged with counterfeiting, and with passing counterfeit half dollars. For some time past spurious coin has been in circulation in Fulton, and yesterday Livingston was detected in the act of passing it and promptly taken into custody. He had been in Fulton but a short time, and claims New Albany, Ind., as his home. He informed the officer who had him in charge that he had been "on the hog" since 1894, and his appearance bears him out in his claim.

One of the half dollars was passed on Mr. J. D. Taylor, one of the men who came up this morning, and after the arrival of the train, the trio, with the prisoner frequently blowing on his manacled hands to drive away the numbness, proceeded to United States Commissioner Puryear's office, where Mr. Taylor swore out a warrant against Livingston.

The three half dollars were left with the federal officer as evidence, and in size and appearance are perfect, being deficient only in weight.

John Barnard, colored, one of the witnesses, testified before Commissioner Puryear this morning that Saturday the defendant entered Jim Barnard's grocery at Fulton, where the witness is a clerk, and called for some tobacco. He tendered a half dollar in payment, and was given 45 cents change. When the money was dropped into the drawer it sounded like counterfeit and the witness examined it out it and ascertained that it was a counterfeit. He followed Livingston down the railroad track and ordered him to stop, drawing a pistol. The tramp also drew a pistol and the clerk fired to frighten him.

Livingston had previously passed a similar coin on Mr. Taylor, who keeps a butcher shop, for a nickel's worth of cheese. He said he was hungry, out of work and almost penniless and at first Taylor did not intend to charge him, but saw him with several half dollars and then concluded to exact the usual amount. The half dollar proved to be "queer."

Livingston himself told Commissioner Puryear at the preliminary trial that his home is in Louisville, and that he did not know the money was counterfeit.

He was held over to await the action of the next federal grand jury in April, and in default of a $500 bond went to jail.

SELF MADE MEN.

An editorial under the above caption appears in a recent edition of the "Inter Ocean" which is large food for thought for our young men. It is said there are hundreds and thousands of self-made men in the United States who have achieved prominence and whose achievements have been a matter of pride to themselves and to the people at large. These men do not talk much of their earlier life and struggles, but they are not ashamed of the fact that in the beginning they were poor boys, and that they made their way in life by their own efforts, without the influence of wealthy or powerful friends. In one case a boy who was brought to this country from Bavaria when only 4 years old secured an education by the hardest work, located in Chicago, became one of the city's leading lawyers, was elected to the bench, and finally to the highest office in the gift of the people of the State, and is now the leader of one of the great political parties in Illinois.

In another case a boy who was brought from England when he was five years old, whose parents located in Illinois, and who began the struggle in life at the age of ten years as a water boy in a stone quarry at Leont, worked his way through the grades of tool carrier, canal driver, clerk and superintendent, until he is now president of the stone company that owns the stone quarries in which he began his life struggle as a water carrier. When this boy was sixteen years old there occurred an incident, or accident that had a great influence in shaping his career. His foot was torn off through the carelessness of someone in charge, and after he had been taken to the hospital he was visited by Mr. Edwin Walker, owner of the quarries, who explained to him that the company would be responsible for damages, and that a fair compensation would be allowed for the injury to him. Incidentally he mentioned that he would take the boy and give him an education, and waive the question of damages. The young cripple, looking out from the hospital bed to the future before him, chose the offer of an education, and before he was 19 years old he held a responsible position in the company, and, starting with a thorough business education, he worked his way to the control of one of the largest industrial interests in the state. He showed himself so much a man of affairs that he was persuaded to enter the city council, and soon became leader of the Republican or respectable element in the council. He is now candidate for United States Senator, and one of the accusations against him is that he is a self-made man.

The mere fact that Martin B. Madden did not have the advantage of a college education, that he did not enter the law, or engage in newspaper or literary work should not bar him from political preferment. There are examples without number in which self-made men have proved in business and politics and statecraft the most useful and most efficient builders for good. The people did not turn away from Lincoln because of his early life, nor from Garfield because he was a canal driver in his younger days, nor from Ben Wade, nor Logan, nor Jackson, because of the circumstances that shaped their character. They did not turn against Joe Fifer because he was a poor boy and carried a rifle in the war, and, in fact, they have been very discriminating in the matter of self-made men who fought their way to the front as the representatives of settled principles and policies.

Certainly a man who began the struggle of life poor and succeeded in business or in the professions, in spite of poverty and untoward circumstances, should not receive less consideration than those more fortunate situated in the beginning. It requires no ordinary talent to manage a great business and to look after the interests of thousands of men; possibly it requires a business talent to look after such a business as to succeed in the law, and possibly the experience gained in the management of great properties is as potent in developing a man of affairs as experience in the professions.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES.

Sarcastic allusions to "McKinley prosperity" continue to be favorite editorial space-fillers in silver papers. Although these same papers claimed prior to the election that "confidence" had nothing to do with the situation, yet now they are complaining that the resumption of good times is not taking place fast enough, when there is not a thing yet to make good times, except a restoration of confidence as the result of the late election.

Times are, however, improving. More people in the aggregate are at work than before the election. The conditions are improving and the outlook is better. R. G. Dun & Co.'s report of last Saturday, the 16th, says:

"The greatest growth and prosperity the country has ever seen came suddenly in 1879, after several months of disappointment because specie resumption had not yet brought the benefits expected. It is not the largest and most powerful vessel that can be started most quickly, and it takes time for new confidence to reach, through easier money markets, larger orders, resuming markets, expanding employment, and larger distribution, to the results which make such gradual and steady improvement have been in progress for more than two months."

Nothing is truer than the above statement. Business resumes by degrees. The starting of one factory calls for the starting of some other one. The improvement of one branch of trade stimulates another.

The report of Saturday further says:

"The output of pig iron has gained 12.3 per cent in December and 41.6 per cent, since October 1. The output of coke has increased 88.7 per cent, since October 1. Sales of wool have again become large, though not yet fully reported. Money markets feel a steady increase in demand for commercial and manufacturing loans. Additional works have gone into operation each week in January, and the working force is larger than at any other time for six months. Best of all, there is so little of the crazy excitement that the gain may be ascribed to the deliberate judgment of the ablest and most prudent men in business. It is not a time of high prices. Many who are anxious to get early hold on the market are making for the moment lower prices than they could afford to maintain. Some have secured orders enough for months to come and begin to be less keen in competition."

When spring opens the outburst of new business will be such as to put to shame those persons who spend all their time now counting up bank and business failures, who rejoice at every financial casualty and see in every mercantile wreck a proof of their statements that the hope of this country is in Bryanism and Altgeldism.

TENNESSEE POLITICS.

The state of Tennessee may be a trifle slow in a few things, but when it comes to handling a contested election case the old Volunteer State is so far ahead that she is in a class all by herself. Two years ago the Democratic leaders made a slight mistake in counting, and the Republicans having carried the state on the face of the returns, it became necessary to count Turney in as governor by a resort to fraud. Of course this was distasteful to the high toned gentlemen who rule Democracy in Tennessee, but the good name and honor of the state was saved from the taint of having had a Republican governor.

Notwithstanding that little objection in practical politics the Republicans have had the temerity to prepare for another contest, believing that as usual the Democratic victory was fraudulent. But the Democratic majority of the Tennessee Legislature don't propose to be worried even with the formalities of a contest this year; so the Legislature made a law as follows: That the Republican contestant should execute bond for $25,000, which amount should be forfeited to the state should this same Democratic majority conclude that the contest was made without sufficient grounds, thus putting it in the power of the Democrats not only to defeat the Republicans in the contest, but also to fine Tillman, the Republican candidate, $25,000 for his folly. This is a new move, but it is a most powerful one. The Republicans of Tennessee will make no contest.

T. C. PLATT resigned from the United States Senate sixteen years ago, and it was thought then that he had disappeared forever as a political factor. From that day to this he has been abused by the press. For sixteen years he has devoted his

THE POPULAR BLOUSE.

Slowly, but surely, he has built up a vast political influence, so that now he is the leader of New York Republicans, and will again represent the Empire State in the National Senate. The press no longer sneers at the great leader, though it still heaps him with abuse. Senator Platt's success is due to the fact that he has managed his politics as he has his business. As a politician his word is as sacred as it is as a business man. Platt keeps his promises. He rewards a loyal political friend for the same reason that he promotes an efficient clerk in his vast business. The ambition of T. C. Platt for sixteen years has been to regain his seat in the senate. This he has done.

While the Butchers are justified in complaining about the old rickety market house we do not think it a wise move to have any competition in regard to markets. Every one readily recognizes that the city ought to do away with the old structure and build a new brick house that would be comfortable, as the receipts from stall rent would pay well. The people are benefitted by all receipts from every source and should be willing to furnish tenable quarters. No doubt the movement is gotten up to force the city to do something, and they should do it as the present place is a disgrace.

The Republican caucus of the New York legislature has nominated Thos. C. Platt for United States senator by a vote of 147 to 7 for Joseph H. Choate, the man who had the temerity to oppose the great boss. Mr. Platt's enemies step from under.

The Public Library.

Every town ought to have a public library containing as many volumes as the town has inhabitants.

Such an institution becomes the center of the intellectual life of a people and affects the manners and morals of the entire community.

Small Paducah embrace the opportunity now offered her for the enjoyment of the benefits and pleasures of such an institution.

Its usefulness is not limited to the few students or scholars of a town; it extends to every class of people in the community.

A well selected public library furnishes entertainment to the leisure class, and instruction and stimulus to the working and thinking people.

Mechanics who are trying to advance themselves in the industrial arts, architects, horticulturists, clergymen, physicians, lawyers, newspaper men, teachers, students of music, of any of the arts, those interested in any of the questions of the day—finance, labor, temperance, woman suffrage, education, the pupils in our Grammar and High schools, may all find in such a library the particular kind of reading adapted to their needs, the great encyclopedias, dictionaries, gazetteers, concordances, books of reference, treatises on whatever subjects may interest them.

The workers in our mills and factories and our railroad shops, whose educational advantages have been inadequate to their mental needs, here find opportunity to supplement those advantages, to supply their needs. Our girls and boys, who, by the force of circumstances, have been compelled to leave school with their work there unfinished, and take their places among the wage-earners of the city, will find in the public library the opportunity to add to their store of information in the special line of work they may have chosen, and to acquire that general culture they may crave. Those in our community to whom life has not accorded the privileges and safe guards of home, need not feel lonely and homeless, and be subjected to the thousand and one temptations to evil spread before them when the hospitable doors of a public library stand open, offering "the society the spiritual presence of the best and greater of our race."

To the young, especially, the public library will be of incalculable benefit. By all means let us encourage this enterprise with our moral and financial support. Let us not lose sight of our city's mental and moral progress in our zeal for her material advancement. Let us have the public library, the "People's College."

An Immaterial Affair.

From the Kansas City Times.

Turkey's annual deficit is one million pounds. But the Sultan doesn't mind that sort of thing any more than President Cleveland.

David is Hum.

From the Boston Herald.

David B. Hill is, presumably, still a Democrat; but he is a bit saying so much about it at present as was his wont in days of yore.

They are Coming.

From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Spokane, Walla Walla, Seattle, and Portland p p p speak of the improved changes. When people get ready for "prosperity" it generally comes. The Northwest has felt grievously the past four years of depression and is ready to heartily welcome the prospective change.

Cheering the Cubans.

From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Yes, "the struggling Cuban patriots have hosts of friends." They seem to be thick all over the globe. And how they do talk! It must cheer up old Gomez amazingly! It is too bad that Spain's strongest ally in the subjugation of Cuba is freedom-loving America.

Our New Tariff Law.

From the Kansas City Times.

"Are we not about to pass a tariff law making it a crime to trade with foreigners?" asks a free trade organ. No indeed. We are going to have a tariff law making it possible to trade with our own people, by giving them employment and wages to buy with. That's all, worried contemporary.

THE POPULAR BLOUSE.

It holds undisturbed sway during this Summer Weather.

All the feminine world seems to be appearing in blouses during the hot weather, and although manufacturers and designers had anticipated the demand for this exceptionally useful and elegant article of attire, they have set to work again and produced some striking novelties with a departure from the regulation article.

A well-known blouse shown at a fitted silken bodice. The fitted bodices are in all the new tints and appear to advantage in eau de Nil, new pink, heliotrope and amber. The close-kilted grass cloth forms the entire front and back of the blouse. The sleeves are of the full top class in grass cloth arranged over a plain coat sleeve of the silk, the top puffings being exceptionally well arranged. At the wrists the sleeves are cut in vandyke, revealing a layer of close-fitting kilted grass cloth edged with Valenciennes. The front hem of the blouse is also ornamented with a double-kilted frill of grass cloth, also edged with Valenciennes. The main collar is high and of silk, over which is arranged the grass cloth in elaborate folds; at the top is an outstanding kilted frill edged with lace. Another novelty introduced in this model is a kilted frill reaching from the throat down the shoulder and terminating at the top of the front of the blouse. The belt is of grass cloth. Another grass cloth model is chic, the cloth forming a zouave over a very bright pink pongee. The fronts and back of the grass cloth zouave represent four inches about three inches deep, each truck being headed with a feather stitch lace. The sleeves are of the class described in the preceding model, but at the wrist up to the elbow are ornamented with a series of ruffles. The blouse with the character of the zouave. The collar of grass cloth turns over a folded silk collar and is relieved from the immediate front, while the pongee collar is ornamented on either side the fastening by a row of six pearl buttons. The pink pongee blouse is very full and seen in an arrangement of epaulettes of pongee beneath the full top of grass cloth. A third remarkable effect is a grass lawn known as striped silk grass lawn. The regulation lawn is intersected with stripes of white silk about a quarter of an inch wide and two thread stripes of gold. The fabric is very taking. With this fabric is introduced folded frills of white chiffon, forming a tout ensemble rarely seen. The front of the blouse is full, the hem being edged on either side by the chiffon frills. Three other chiffon frills appear on either side of the center, the whole frontage being trimmed with chiffon. The chiffon frills are about 1 1/2 inches in width. The collar proper is of white satin with an over collar set on small wings, these being of the grass lawn edged with chiffon frills. Still, notwithstanding the charm of the blouse, the sleeves are the noted feature of taste and artistic style. The main sleeve is coat shape, and at the top is ornamented with a huge bow and end. The bow is formed of a large square of the grass lawn folded up and left open on the side that faces the front where it is edged with the chiffon frill. In arrangement this feature is difficult to describe accurately, but, exceptionally beautiful, adding to the back from this bow is an elongated wing of grass lawn tapering to a point where it reaches the waist line. The main sleeve falls over the coat sleeve to the elbow, and the innovation to supersede regulation puff sleeves is the most artistic and novel that can be imagined. Frills of chiffon carry out the character of the blouse at the wrists.—St. Louis Republic.

NO FREEDOM FOR CHILDREN.

Society's Laws Operate to the Disadvantage of the Little Ones.

The young of the human race alone are bound to keep quiet. They are taken out to walk in the beautiful parks and compelled to restrain that natural impulse which makes them want to roll over on the velvet grass and climb the trees and dig in the tempting day dirt. In this respect the laws of society are in direct opposition to the natural instincts of the young. If children were allowed these liberties the beauty of the parks would be spoiled. It is charged against American children that they are boisterous and self-asserting in public. I have myself seen a child complain at the surprising lack of consideration and deference for their elders shown by our young people in the way of grasping car seats, taking possession of the easiest chairs in the parlor and the choicest bits at the table; in their inclination to argue and to get into a quarrel; in their lack of attention. But all this is part of another subject. If children are selfish, unmannerly and impertinent, bad training is clearly the cause. They are mal eclere, as the French always say of a rude young person. It is quite possible to be happy, spontaneous, overflowing with good spirits, and yet be docile and sweet-tempered. To sit still is not to be virtuous. Sitting still may be required, but running about, climbing, twisting and stretching every muscle in his little body is much more natural and congenial to the child, and every opportunity ought to be given him thus to work off an activity that certainly will turn to fretfulness if restrained. It takes kindness and consideration from his guardians to enable Tot to subdue his impulse to run riot and exercise his limbs and his lungs in the way nature suggests to him.—Ladies' Home Companion.

"Is curiosity a small creature, mamma?" "Why do you ask, child?" "Because they always say 'Curiosity was on tip-toe,' and I supposed it was because he couldn't see over, standing flat-footed."

Drummers Are Kicking.

From the Pittsburgh News.

Here is an Astor heiress mesquedged as a chambermaid in a western hotel, and all the drummers on the continent will be kicking themselves that they did not discover her.

All That is Left.

From the Philadelphia Press.

Andrew Jackson is about all that the Democrats have left to worship. Everything else has been sacrificed on the altar of Populism.

WRITTEN AT RANDOM.

A great many stories are told of stinging people, but Mechanisms can probably lay claim to the distinction of having by far the stingiest man on earth. He lives up there somewhere, but just where isn't prudent to state, because if the exact location were divulged he might himself away with a robust coil and look for personal satisfaction and the writer.

At any rate, some years ago—say about ten—his grandfather died, and two of his children about the same time shuffled off this mortal coil in the usual quiet and peaceful manner. Their remains were interred in the yard of this stingiest man on earth to return to the dust of which they sprang, and to mingle with the soil of mother earth. Not long since, when the remains were disinterred, however, they had not yet undergone any dusty metamorphosis, and the casket had not decayed sufficiently to permit their mingling with the soil of mother earth or father dirt. The old gent up in the "burg" had decided to plant corn in his yard and concluded that it was expedient to transfer the remains of his lost ancestor and slumbering posterity to Oak Grove, a cemetery not entirely unknown to Paducah people. The remains were exhumed, but when the enterprising resident started to have the graves dug in Oak Grove he ascertained that it would cost $2 for each child's grave and $3 for the mundane receptacle of his grandpa. It was then that the spirit of economy suffused his soul, and he studied studiously. Calling the assistance of a boy, he took grandpa out of his vermicular enclosure, and one of his deceased progeny out of his coffin. The coffin box of the other son—the old one had been replaced by a new goods box about the proper size—was opened. The second son was dumped in with the first, but grandpa's legs were too long, and he wouldn't go in well. Scratching his head and elevating his eyebrows, which were the only things elevated about the good and reverential citizen, he finally bethought himself of an ingenious expedient, and sent the boy for an axe. When the latter returned he was told to hold grandpa's feet, a la turkey on the Thanksgiving block, and the economizing director of ceremonies chopped them off. The cadaver then went in without any difficulty, and as he tossed the two distended pedal extremities in with the remainder of the anatomical display, he murmured an exultant "Now I can get 'em in in a $2 grave and save $3!" Now this story is true, and is vouched for by the boy who rendered such valuable assistance on the occasion detailed above. If that man isn't the stingiest individual that ever lived, please let's hear from somebody else.

Morton's opera house will be packed tomorrow night. In addition to the appearance of one of the greatest of American interpreters of Shakespeare, Mr. John Griffith, in one of the most celebrated roles, that of Richard III, there will be still another attraction. And what will make the engagement of Mr. Griffith more than ordinary interest is the appearance of Miss Bessie Monsterrat, who was formerly a resident of Paducah, and whose family is well known here, one of the leading roles. Miss Monsterrat only recently adopted the stage as a profession, but the success she has attained is almost phenomenal, and she has won laurels every where she has appeared. She doubtless has in store an agreeable surprise for her friends here.

A great many things have passed through a great many people, ranging from a thunderbolt to a ten penny nail, but it is likely that few people ever had a telephone message go through them. There are a couple of Paducah telephone linemen, however, who have undergone this novel experience. The Mayfield "Democrat" says:

"Two Paducah telephone linemen before repairing a broken wire caught up the ends of the wire, joined hands and allowed a message to be sent through them from Mayfield to Paducah."

Jim Holden is the name of a colored trusty at the county jail, who now enjoys the sobriquet of "Biscuit Jim," because of his inordinate fondness and capacity for biscuits. The biscuits dispensed to the boarders at the jail are much larger than the usual size, but Jim can get on the outside of twenty-five of them without the slightest difficulty.

Speaking of telegraph operators, there are good ones, medium ones and poor ones. But you shouldn't undertake to judge one by his personal appearance or his clothes, because like newspaper men and other down-trodden angels in disguise they get "on the hog" sometimes.

The other day an ungloved looking specimen of humanity struck town, and at the first telegraph office he came across appeared for a job. He had the appearance and the air of a knight of the tin can and "hand out," and as might be expected nobody was looking for a telegraph operator, not like that one, anyhow. But nothing daunted, he hung around until his opportunity came. One of the night operators got sick or full or something, and the "bum" was given a temporary job. He turned out to be an old associated press operator, and what he did was a plenty. He read and smoked and wrote press dispatches at the same time. Occasionally his pipe went out, and he would go back to the stove and relight it and then return to writing the dispatches, not the least confused because he was thirty words behind. He was considered a regular freak by local operators, and when he finally went to the back part of the house while his instrument was clicking off words as fast as they could be sent, drew a bucket of water, drank half of it,—for a change—and returned to his work, finishing out the dispatch with as much abandon as if it were all down in black and white before him, he completely captured them all.

An operator who can stay half a dozen words behind the message is considered a good one, but when you find one who can scratch off a word and keep track of twenty-five or thirty that come after it, he's a cracker-jack.

The old associated press man went to Louisville to work for a couple of weeks.

A great many people who seem to be well educated are not very good at spelling. Here is a note a local doctor received a day or two ago from a person supposed to be very intelligent.

"Doctor:—

Doctor please com down to se MRs.—She is noe Better now com Wright a way Pleas she is Hurtling Bad She is in Misre." The doctor went.

A young woman recently made her appearance at the Presbyterian church. She was well dressed, and by her devotion and commendable piety, although a stranger, soon became quite well thought of. Later she signified a desire to unite with the church, and several of the ladies went to see her and question her on the subject,—to sound her sanctity, as it were. She shined, and the ladies were very highly gratified at their success.

Not long afterwards the newly elected candidate for salvation approached one of the ladies and inquired:

"When will the bishop be here?"

"Why, we don't have bishops in the Presbyterian church," exclaimed one of the ladies, amused at the young woman's evident ignorance.

"They have bishops in the Episcopal church," she explained.

"Well that's what I thought this was. Why, those ladies have been giving me clothes to join the Episcopal church," faltered the deluded woman, "and I thought I was going to the right one."

It developed that some of the ladies of the Episcopal church had asked her why she didn't go to church, and she offered as an excuse the fact that she had no suitable clothes. They sent her some, and of course she felt duty bound to go to church and to join. But she accidentally joined the wrong one. The incident furnished considerable amusement for members of both churches.

Dr. P. H. Stewart has a very bright little son—two of them in fact—but the elder is the one of whom this narrative is told. A few days ago the doctor went down to market and bought a large hog, which he carried home to have converted into lard sausage, and perhaps pickled pigs' feet. For a day or two the housefolks were busy performing the duties so essential in changing her sowship into the desirable delicacies, and in making the sausage a quantity of sage was mixed in. Some of the stems in the sage were not removed when it was pinched off the small bale in which it is bought. When the first sausage was cooked, the youngster was very eager to get first choice. He took a big mouthful, chewed for a moment and then turning to his mother he disdainfully remarked, in apparent disgust, "I knowed you get too much hay in them sausage."

The following good one is from the Chicago "Times-Herald," and is given for the amusement for our railroad readers:

"Before I came to this part of the country I was an engineer on a railroad down south," said a railway man. "We used to make a long run and we were pretty long about. While on that line I had some very odd experiences. I remember one station, a woman came up to me and asked me to hold the train for five minutes. She said that her daughter wanted to take the train to the city. I told her that it was impossible for me to hold the train for her."

"I don't see why," she expostulated. "I think you might do a little thing like that."

"I tried to explain to her that trains run on schedule time, and like time and tide, wait for no man, or woman either, for that matter. But she wouldn't have it, and finally just as we were about to start, she shouted indignantly:

"Well, I'll just see about that."

"I laughed, but soon I ceased to laugh, for what did that old woman do but get right on the track about three feet in front of the engine. She sat herself there, firmly grasping hold of the rails with both hands. The conductor signalled for me to go ahead, as our stop was over. But I couldn't do it as long as she remained on the track, for I would kill her certainly. I called to the conductor and he, impatient at the delay, came up. I explained the situation to him. He was as mad as I was, and going up to the woman told her to get off the track.

"I just won't," she replied, "till my daughter gets on board your train."

"He pleaded with her some more and finally declared that he would be compelled to use force.

"Just you dare!" she cried, "I'll sue you for damages if you do."

"This opened a new complication, and we reasoned with ourselves whether we had better remove her by force. Just as we had determined upon a course of policy her daughter came up and seeing the old woman on the track, kissed her goodbye and got on the train, while her mother called to her:

"Go ahead, Mary Ann. You have plenty of time, though, for I will sit on the track until you get on board."

"And then, when Mary Ann was safely on board, and we were about ready to run over the old woman, if necessary, she calmly and slowly got up and waved me a goodbye, calling as we pulled out of the station:

"I hope I've taught you fellows a grain of peritiveness."

WEATHER REPORT.

Louisville, Jan. 18.—Generally fair tonight and Tuesday; colder tonight.

LOCAL MENTION.

Another Cold Wave.

There was another sudden change in the weather yesterday. The forenoon was almost like spring, but in the afternoon a blizzard struck the locality amidships, and the thermometer this morning registered 20 above.

Since October 1, 88.7 per cent. of wool have again become large, though not yet fully reported. Money markets feel a steady increase in demand for commercial and manufacturing loans. Additional works have gone into operation each week in January, and the working force is larger than at any other time for six months.

Nothing in it.

It was reported today that there was a rape committed at Fulton, but developed from inquiry that it was all a canard.

Lodestone Liniment

Is a new combination of valuable remedies for the speedy relief of rheumatism, lame back, stiff joints, sore throat, etc. It draws the pain out without delay. For sale by OEHLSCHLAGER & WALKER, Druggists, Fifth and Broadway.

Hoarseness leads to serious irritation of the throat and may end in a racking, rasping cough. From this condition it is but a step to serious lung trouble. Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey will quickly clear the throat and leave the voice clear and smooth. It is an infallible remedy for all disorders of the throat and lungs. Get a bottle to day.

Non-Partisan Ticket Desired.

Since the action of the sub-committees of the Democratic and Popular executive committee, it seems to me that the way is now perfectly clear for the election of a non-partisan citizen ticket. As all the official duties are non-political, there seems to be no necessity for a partisan qualification as a prerequisite to entering the race or filling any office that is to be filled. However the time now is, I believe, that the people, and especially those Democrats who are dissatisfied with the course of their executive committee, need to sit down on partisan rule by a non-partisan election.

CITIZEN.

Circuit Court.

The case of Mrs. Mary Walsh against the Paducah Street Railway Company for $5,000 damages was given to the jury this forenoon, but a verdict had not been brought in at 3 o'clock, and the indications are that the jury will disagree.

The case of Stair against Henson for a division of land is now on trial.

Good boy's pupils from 13 to 18 years for 50 cents, at Max Levy's, 204 Court street.

MINISTERS' MEETING.

Interesting Paper Read By Rev. P. Prod.

This forenoon a largely attended meeting of the Ministerial Association was held at the Young Men's Christian Association hall.

A paper was read by Rev. P. Prod. of the First Baptist church, and discussed, and a most interesting morning was spent.

STRANGE FIGHT AT SEA.

Long Battle Between a Giant Whale and a Mammoth Squid.

We were cruising in the Strait of Malacca, just before sunset. As usual, he had ejected the contents of his stomach before dying, and we especially noticed the immense size of some of the masses floating about. By common consent they were about as large as our bathhouse, which measures six by eight feet. I must not forget to state that these masses were not square, but irregularly shaped masses, bitten, or torn off in blocks from the body of some gigantic squid.

The whale was secured alongside, and all hands went below for a good rest prior to commencing to "cut it" at daybreak. I had the watch from eight o'clock to midnight, and at 11 p. m. was leaning over the lee rail, idly gazing seaward, where the rising moon was making a broad lane of silver light upon the smooth dark waters. Presently there was a commotion at sea, right in the way of the moon, and I immediately went for the night glasses to ascertain if possible the nature of it. In that neighborhood there are several active volcanoes, and at first I judged the present disturbance to be one of these, sending up debris from the sea bed. A very short examination satisfied me that the trouble, whatever it might be, was not of volcanic or seismic origin. I called the captain, as in duty bound, but he was indisposed to turn out for anything short of actual danger, so the watch and I had the sight to ourselves. Wedged away a little under the light draught of wind, so as to draw nearer to the scene, and presently were able to realize its full significance. A very large sperm whale was engaged in a deadly conflict with a monstrous squid, whose far-reaching tentacles enveloped the whale's whole body.

The livid whiteness of those writhing arms, which enlaced the cachalot like a nest of mighty serpents, stood out in bold relief against the black, bowdler-like head of the aggressor. Presently the whale raised itself half out of the water, and we plainly saw the awful-looking head of the gigantic mollusk. At our distance, something under a mile, it appeared about the size of one of our largest oil casks, which held 336 gallons. Like the rest of the calmar visible, it was of a peculiar dead white, and in it gleamed two eyes of lanky blackness about a foot in diameter.

To describe the actual contentions of those two monsters, locked in a deadly embrace, is far beyond my power, but it was a never-to-be-forgotten sight. The utter absence of all sound, for we were not near enough to hear the turmoil of the treated sea, was not the least remarkable feature of this titanic encounter. All around the combatants, too, were either smaller whales or immense sharks, who were evidently assisting in the destruction of the great squid and getting a full share of the feast. As we looked on, however, we saw the writhings gradually cease, and the encircling tentacles gradually slip off the whale's body, which seemed to float unusually high. At last all was over, and the whole commotion had completely subsided, leaving no trace behind but an intensely strong odor of a rocky coast at low tide in the full blaze of the sun. Since that night I have never had a doubt either as to the origin of all sea-serpent stories or the authenticity of the old Norse legends of the Kraken, for who could blame a man witnessing such a sight, and all unaccustomed to the close observation of whales, for reporting some fearsome monster with horrible mane and floating "many a rood"?—Nature.

The Natural Habits of Cattle.

It is easy to see that cattle are at home in a moist and wooded country. The feral cattle of Texas and Australia never from choice stray far from the woods. Out on the western ranches there are, of course, few trees, and the beasts thrive fairly well; but for all that the conditions of their life are artificial, and are not such as they would select if free to choose their own dwelling place. All cattle love to stand knee deep in water and under the shadow of trees. Their heads are carried low, even when they are startled, so that they can see under the spreading branches of the forest. Compare the habitual position of the head of a cow with that of the horse, pronghorn, or guanaco, which live in the open and have to watch the horizon for the approach of enemies. Then the split hoofs of the cattle are wonderfully adapted for progress over soft ground. In galloping, their hoofs or deep mud an ox or buffalo will easily distance a swift horse. Their toes spread wide, and so they do not sink in so far as the solid-hoofed animal. This is even more important, the open cleft between the toes allows the air to enter the hole in the mud as the foot is withdrawn; whereas, a horse's hoof sticks like a "sucker" owing to the partial vacuum below it, and can only be dragged out by a great muscular effort. Mounted hunters have been overtaken and killed by buffalo, African and Indian—owing to this fact.—North American Review.

ANIMAL HEAT.

It is Created Mainly by the Food We Eat.

The temperature of the body is a little over 98 degrees Fahrenheit, and the atmosphere which is, perhaps, most suited for young children is somewhere between 55 degrees and 65 degrees Fahrenheit; hence it follows that, unless the child has an enormous power of manufacturing and storing animal heat, its body temperature will be reduced considerably lower than the normal, and this will be a risk of life—indeed, in the case of young children such a reduction is incompatible with life.

This animal heat is distributed throughout the body by the blood-vessels, which contain a fluid somewhat higher in temperature than that of the body, and this is circulated freely and rapidly through every part of the body like a system of hot-water pipes.

Food, then, is the main manufacturer of animal heat, the blood-vessels are its distributors, and the surface of the body is the main source of the loss of heat. In order, therefore, to maintain the bodily temperature economically, we must diminish this loss by the application of some non-conducting material to the cooling surface. In children this surface is far greater in proportion to their bulk or weight than in adults. By economizing the animal heat, we, therefore, to some extent, economize food. People eat less in summer than in winter, partly because the system requires less to maintain this heat, and in cold countries it becomes essential for people to eat special articles of diet, such as fat, because of their heat-producing properties.—N. Y. Ledger.

Dainty Queen's Lace.

Of all the dainty, lovely details of the summer's wardrobe there is nothing daintier and more lovely than the queen's lace with which she trims her verdant garments. It is not everybody that knows it as "queen's lace," but anybody who has admired its feathery pattern fringing the roadside and whitening the hills must appreciate the fitness of the title. It is not a new thing, farmers do pronounce it a pest and call it "wild carrots," all persons of less than Italian ideas have long since recognized its royal prerogative and stately grace.

If You Say Your Child...

With an immense amount of trouble ready to drop on it, you would do your utmost to prevent it, wouldn't you? And yet thousands of parents, either from thoughtlessness or mistaken notions of economy, allow the perfect teeth of their little ones to gradually decay, to fester, to rot, and to finally drop out, leaving the child's mouth a mass of pain and trouble. It is not a matter of fancy, but of fact, that the decay of the teeth is a serious matter, and it is one that should be prevented. The perfect teeth of the child are the foundation of a healthy mouth, and they are the foundation of a healthy body. They are the foundation of a healthy mind, and they are the foundation of a healthy life. They are the foundation of a healthy future, and they are the foundation of a healthy world. They are the foundation of a healthy nation, and they are the foundation of a healthy civilization. They are the foundation of a healthy humanity, and they are the foundation of a healthy universe. They are the foundation of a healthy everything, and they are the foundation of a healthy nothing.

STEAM HEATERS.

The People's Street Cars Are All Supplied.

The People's Street Railway company is entitled to much commendation for the enterprise that has resulted in supplying all the cars on this line with heaters.

By this means the cars are kept as warm as the interior of the room and as dry as could be desired. This is an innovation in street railway service in Paducah, and is resulting in a most gratifying increase in patronage.
